INTRODUCTION

The Synod of Virginia authorized a five-year program for microfilming records beginning January 1, 1965, with a primary objective of preservation. The Historical Records Project was organized by the Synod's Committee on History which was headed by William M. E. Rachal, Editor of the Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Those who served on this committee were Henry M. Brimm, Librarian at Union Theological Seminary in Virginia; Mrs. Douglas Summers Brown, author of several books on history; David H. Coblentz, former President of the Manuscript Society in the United States; Robert P. Davis, staff member of the Board of Christian Education; Raymond C. Dingledine, Professor of History at Madison College; Mrs. Vernon L. Dyer, former Synodical Historian, Women of the Church; Paul L. Grier, Librarian at Hampden-Sydney College; Oron J. Hale, Professor of History at the University of Virginia; Mrs. Patricia Menk, Professor of History at Mary Baldwin College; James H. Smylie, Professor of Church History at Union Theological Seminary in Virginia; and Mrs. Sarah E. Teter, Instructor in History at Virginia Commonwealth University.

For the purpose of research positive film copies of both the above minutes and the Historical Records Project collection may be found at the Historical Foundation, Montreat, North Carolina, and at the Library, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Virginia. The negative is stored at the Seminary Library and the Seminary's positive copy is available on interlibrary loan.

SCOPE

Except for the material filmed earlier, the collection includes, so far as available, records of the Synod and its institutions; records of the work of the presbyteries; records of the constituent churches, past and present; personal papers and correspondence of Virginia leaders; and manuscripts of scholars on Presbyterianism in Virginia. The area covered is the present Synod of Virginia and its constituent presbyteries. Brief information has been gathered on the origin and development of the Synod, each of the presbyteries, and each of the churches, along with a listing of the various presbyteries that have been enrolled in the Synod through the years. A limited number of restricted items are marked with an asterisk (*) for the use of which special permission must be secured from those having custody of the original records so designated.

ARRANGEMENT

The Synod records are followed by the records of the presbyteries in alphabetical order. The churches are in alphabetical order within each presbytery, with obsolete names in the index referring to the present names. Research has been done on churches, including those without records, and a brief statement of the founding and development has been prepared for every church and church court unit along with a detail listing of items under each. Microfilm target and outline pages precede each manuscript volume. Personal and miscellaneous papers are targeted in the same manner. The use of the abbreviations listed identifies the court to which a reel number belongs and the various locations, by county or city, of churches with identical names.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Synod is indebted to many persons for the unusually high percentage of extant records which have been collected. The sessions cooperated with presbytery leadership and they in turn gave hearty support to the Synod effort, with the Women of the Synodical giving valuable promotional aid. Recognition of special assistance should be given to those who staff the church and presbytery offices, particularly where they served as collection points. The institutions whose staff members gave generously in time and effort include the Union Theological Seminary Library, the Historical Foundation, the Virginia State Library, the University of Virginia Library, the Virginia Historical Society, and the Presbyterian Historical Society, Philadelphia. Generous credit is due the editor's wife, Virginia P.

Wilson, who has worked continously on the project at the tedious task of collating more than half a million pages of material as it arrived and splicing the film into an orderly arrangement.
